COMMON COVERAGE GAP FOR THIS CLASS

The most commonly missed exposure for this class is silica. OSHA's construction silica standard has been among the most-cited rules since 2019, and cutting and grinding without water or vacuum controls creates both citations and long-tail occupational disease claims. Contractors should use Table 1 controls on every task, keep a written exposure plan, and have formwork for elevated pours designed and inspected.

This checklist is a free educational tool from Cory Washington & Co. to help you review your own coverage and have a more informed conversation with a licensed insurance professional. It is general information only — not insurance, legal, or financial advice, and not a recommendation to buy, change, or cancel any policy. The Core / Prevalent / Situational labels describe general patterns observed for this class of business — what is commonly carried, not a personalized recommendation or needs analysis for your specific operations. Coverage terms, availability, limits, and requirements vary by policy, carrier, and state, and only the language in your actual policy governs what is and isn't covered. Checking or leaving blank any item above does not indicate that you are adequately insured or under-insured. Using this checklist does not create a client, agency, or fiduciary relationship.
